More and more students take cell phones with them to school now. At school, we can see them talking with cell phones here and there. Some cell phones can do much more things than just talking. They can play music or take pictures. Some of them can even send or get pictures. The cell phone is really a convenient device.

Do the students really need cell phones? They can easily have a talk with their classmates or friends at school without cell phones. Do their parents have so much to say to their children? If they want to tell their children something, they can ask their teachers for help. It's also convenient.

Last week, we had a bad experience. Someone's cell phone rang during the Chinese class. The teacher got a little angry, of course. Some students started to talk about it and didn't listen to what the teacher was saying. Later the phone rang again. This time the teacher got really mad and asked the owner of the cell phone to take it to her, but no one did what she said. The teacher got even angrier, and she just stood there, and later the class was over.

Are cell phones really convenient?

() 72 、What can't we do with a cell phone now?

(A) Play some music.

(B) Talk with friends.

(C) Play a DVD.

(D) Send pictures.

- (A) The teacher gave a test in the class.
- (B) A parent came to talk to his son.
- (C) The students wanted to study English.
- (D) A cell phone rang during the class.

() 74 、 What does the writer think of cell phones?

- (A) Students can buy much better cell phones next year.
- (B) Taking cell phones to school is convenient for students.
- (C) The Chinese teacher can use her cell phone in class, too.
- (D) There's no need for students to take cell phones to school.

() 75 、 What does device mean in the first paragraph?

- (A) A person who helps others.
- (B) A teacher who teaches well.
- (C) A picture that looks funny.
- (D) A tool that does a special job.

Look at the first picture on the right side. It's called an ice skating shoe. Three hundred years ago, Hans Brinker, living in Holland in Europe, wanted to enjoy skating in summer and winter. By changing the shoes a little, he could skate on roads without ice. However, the first pair of real roller-skating shoes were invented by Joseph Merlin, who lived in Belgium in Europe. A hundred years later, thousands of people were roller-skating in the USA, and it got popular in the 1930s. In 1979, Scott and Brennan Olson, living in Minneapolis in the US, made the first rollerblading shoes now we are using. The two brothers built a factory to make the shoes later and made a lot of money as the sport of rollerblading got more and more popular.

() 79 、 Who made the first real roller-skating shoes?

(A)Hans Brinker.

(B)Joseph Merlin.

(C)Scott Olson.

(D)Brennan Olson.

Many years ago, there was a man called Wang Sheng. He liked to travel when he had free time.

One day he carried his package and rode his bicycle on his way to a town. It was getting dark, and he began to see some trees, and then the trees were more and more. He knew he had got into a forest, and he had to pass it as quickly as he could.

It was darker now and he could almost see nothing. He took out his old flashlight, but the light wasn't bright enough, so he couldn't see the road very clearly.

Suddenly he heard a noise -- "Oooo ..." Mr. Wang was scared and his heart was beating very fast. "Is there anything wrong?" he thought. He was told before that there was a ghost in this place when it was dark, and it was dangerous for only one man to pass it. He was so scared that he couldn't think what he wanted to do next. After looking at the direction where the noise came from for a while, he sang the song which he often sang and went on his riding slowly.

A few minutes later, a woman's voice was heard: "Hello, would you please give me something to eat? I'm so hungry." Mr. Wang tried to find where the woman was. When he looked back, a very beautiful woman with long hair and white clothes caught his eye. He was very happy because she was really very beautiful, and she could be his companion when he passed the terrible place. But he was frightened again when he saw she did not stand on the ground. Instead, she floated! "Oh, my God! I really meet a ghost." Mr. Wang, without answering her, turned back and rode his bike very fast. The woman did not give up. She ran after him. "Help! Help!" Mr. Wang cried loudly, but no answer was heard. Soon he saw a river in front of him. He did not know what to do because he was not able to swim, and the woman was very near him now.

When he was troubled, he saw a bridge near him. He rode across it very fast. At last he saw a weak light from a house far away. He didn't look back and ran towards it to ask for help.

One day Mr. Green stayed in a big hotel in Kaohsiung for his business. He was very tired after he went back to the hotel, so he took a bath after getting into his room.

Thirty minutes later, he went out of the bathroom. He felt very comfortable and was going to bed. He looked at his watch. It's almost twelve o'clock. He took off his clothes, turned off the light and went to bed.

After Mr. Green fell into sleep for a few minutes, someone knocked his door. Mr. Green was awoken and was very angry because he was really very, very tired. He opened the door and saw a police officer standing in front of him. "I'm sorry, sir," the policeman said, "It's said a very rich man lost all his money in the building. Everyone here is suspected to be the thief." "I didn't steal it, sir," said Mr. Green. "Maybe you are right," said the policeman, "but I'm very sorry we still want to check your room. Would you please turn on the light and let me in?" Mr. Green did as he asked. But the light didn't work. So the policeman opened the windows to let the light in and checked Mr. Green's room. Nothing could he find but Mr. Green's case in which Mr. Green's things were put. There were only his clothes in it.

As the policeman was thinking, he saw a small pack in another side of the room. Then he opened it and found a lot of money in it. Both of them were very surprised. "Now, you get into big trouble, Mr. Green," said the policeman. "How will you explain it?" Standing in the middle of the room, Mr. Green couldn't say anything. A minute later, Mr. Green said, "To tell the truth, I didn't know why the money was here, either. I came back at 11:30 last night and went to bed at 12:00 because I was so tired." But the policeman didn't listen to him. He said, "If you want to say anything about this, please go with me, and you can say as you like at the police station."  suspect : 懷疑 explain : 解釋

中華民國 94 年 6 月 4 日 星期六 天氣 晴

今天開始我們兩天的日月潭之旅。我和弟弟早就高興的睡不著，大約五點左右，就都爬起來了，吵得爸、媽不得不跟著起床。一早我們就從台中家出發，大約 15 分鐘左右，就到了草屯，中投公路真方便，然後就往埔里的方向前進。

沿路上，我們看到很多人在賣水果，有很多我們愛吃的桃子、甜柿、甘蔗等，我們當然都吃得粉爽，超滿足的。晚上，我們就住在埔里一家很有特色的民宿裡，主人熱情地招待了當地特產——茭白筍，以及附近的各式菇類名產，大家大吃一頓。

中華民國 94 年 6 月 5 日 星期日 天氣 晴

今天的目標是這趟旅遊的重點——日月潭。從埔里到日月潭，大約是 50 分鐘的車程，途中會經過魚池鄉，它的命名由來，就是因為日月潭就位於這個鄉裡面，而且潭中盛產了各式各樣的魚，還真有趣。

日月潭是台灣的第一大湖，風景超美的，在那裡，不但可以釣魚，還可以划船、坐快艇，帥呆了，大家都玩得很愉快，但是湖實在太大了，以致於我們划不到對岸，難怪也有人叫它「小海」；中午，當然就在那兒吃美味魚產，再配當地山珍囉。大約是下午三點半，我們就繞道水里和名間，然後上高速公路打道回台中了。

It's Thursday morning. Sally, a teacher at Wonder Junior High School in Hualien, finds a note on her way to the office. Sally picks it up, and here is what's written on the note.

Sally opened it and it said:

Sophia,

Do you still remember Edward, the boy I told you about? We've been writing to each other since we first met on the Internet. The day before yesterday, I received his e-mail again. He asked me to go to Taipei to meet him this weekend. I plan to go there Friday night and stay at a hotel that night. But I don't think I have enough money. So can you lend me two thousand dollars? Please give me the money at the station at 8:00 Friday night.

Please keep this just between you and me. Don't tell anyone about this. My parents will kill me if they find out. Call me when you get to the station. You have my cell phone number, right?

Your best friend,

Polly

Sally knows Polly, a student in Class 720. Polly always gets good grades on the tests and is a good student in teachers' eyes. After reading the note, Sally feels that something bad may happen. So she

Each country has her national flag, and usually there is a story behind each national flag. The national flag of the United Kingdom has an interesting story, too.

The UK has four parts. They are England, Wales, Scotland, and Northern Ireland. They all have their own flags. When Wales became part of England in 1542, the flag of England was the one used—nothing was changed. However, in 1603, when Scotland joined England to form a new country, the two national flags were put together to form a new flag. The last member, Ireland, joined the kingdom in 1801, and it was in that year that the modern flag we see today appeared. In 1992, however, parts of Ireland left the kingdom to become a new country. It also started to use its own flag.

The dodo, which couldn't fly, has been extinct for more than 300 years now. It lived on the island of Mauritius, a country in the Indian Ocean. It stood about 100cm tall, ate fruit and built its nest on the ground.

The last dodo was seen in 1681. Why did the dodo become extinct? It wasn't because of people's hunting--the meat of the dodo wasn't delicious at all! It is now believed that the animals foreigners brought to the island was one of the reasons for the dodo's extinction. Animals brought to Mauritius, such as pigs, dogs, cats, rats, and macaques, ate the fat birds and their eggs on the ground while people cut down the forests in which the dodo lived.

We should learn to love and try our best to protect what we have on the beautiful earth, or soon we won't be able to see a certain animal or plant any more because of our carelessness.

Basketball is one of the most popular sports in the world. It is a team sport in which two teams of five active players each try to get points against one another by throwing a ball through a 10-foot high basket under organized rules. The team with more points at the end of the game wins.

In early December, 1891, the basketball game was invented by Dr. James Naismith, a Canadian PE instructor in Springfield, USA. In the beginning, he just wanted to find an indoor game for his students in winter. He wrote the basic rules and nailed a peach basket with a bottom onto a 10-foot high wall. The players got one point by shooting the brown soccer ball into the basket. He called the new game "Basket Ball". This new kind of sport soon became one of the most popular sports in North America.

"I hate being overweight. My husband said he didn't mind but I knew he still hoped I had a beautiful body. Everything from my waist to my legs was overweight. When I looked in the mirror, I had to comfort myself that I looked better in full clothes.

My social life went out the window as I was never in the mood to go out. I'd spread my clothes out all over my bed, knowing that I wouldn't fit into most of them. And when I finally left the house, I'd feel too embarrassed to enjoy myself.

Finally, just after Christmas last year, I decided that something had to be done. I was at my fattest ever after all those big meals and desserts.

I met Dr. Wallace and she was great. She told me I had to stop eating fast foods. It was very hard for me because I was eating them three or four times a week: pizza, hamburgers, whatever I could get. But I made a promise to myself at the start that I would try my best to do it -- and I did. I even cut down the booze -- something I thought I could never do because I used to have two glasses of wine with dinner.

My best friend, Rachel Waterman, said I had to walk 10,000 steps every day. That, too, was very hard for me at the start. I was used to driving everywhere, including the supermarket, which was about three metres from my house!

But I began to walk everywhere instead. I walked in the morning before work and after work my husband and I took a walk in the park together. Now I never go to bed until I've done my 10,000 steps. Last month, my husband bought me an iPod, which keeps me going.

Losing the weight is wonderful -- I feel like a different person now, and can finally buy what I want to in the shops. I am so proud of myself because everyone thought I wouldn't be able to do it – including myself.

I love my new body, and I'll never let myself go back into my old ways.(改寫資料來

This is an e-mail a student writes to his teacher. Read the e-mail and answer the following questions.

Dear Max,

Can you imagine that I'll study math in college this September? I've really made it five years after you told me that I could do well in math.

I still remember the day you asked me to go to your office when I got only 4 points, the lowest grade in the class. You told me my math grade could be better if I had enough confidence in myself. My good English score was the proof I wasn't a stupid boy.

From then on, I tried my best to study a little every day. It was very difficult for me in the beginning. My parents were surprised when they found that I was working so hard at math. They thought it would not last long. However, under your instruction, I got my first 30 points on the math test, and it gave me more confidence.

I worked as hard in senior high as in junior high. The math teacher, Lucy, was as good as you, and she taught me patiently, even when I asked her the same question again and again.

I had a discussion with my girlfriend, Sally, before I made up my mind to study math in college, and she gave me her full support. We went shopping for a present for you. Are you free at lunch time next Monday? My girlfriend and I hope we can go back to school to give the present to you.

Though sleeping is important for our health, we don't usually think much about it. Most of us think it's just a part of life. However, when we can't sleep, it can be a real problem.

Most people usually need an 8-hour sleep a day. If you don't have a nice sleep, you'll start to find that you are tired all the time and find it difficult to concentrate.

Sleeping is very important, but how can you help yourself to keep away from insomnia. Here are some useful tips.

Do's...

- Make sure that your bed and bedroom are comfortable.
- Make sure that your mattress supports you properly. Generally, you should get a new one every 10 years for the best support and comfort.
- Get some exercise, but don't overdo it. The best time is in the late afternoon or early evening.
- Take some time to relax properly before going to bed.
- If something is troubling you, and there is nothing you can do about it right away, jot it down before going to bed and tell yourself to deal with it the next day.
- If you can't sleep, get up and do something you find relaxing. Read, watch TV or listen to soft music. After a while you should feel tired enough to go to bed again.

Don'ts...

- Don't go without sleep for a long period of time. Go to bed only when you're tired.
- Don't drink too much tea or coffee, especially after mid-afternoon.
- Don't eat or drink a lot late at night.
- If you've had a bad night, don't sleep in the next day--it will make it harder to get off to sleep the following night.

If you follow these tips and still have difficulty falling asleep, go and see your doctor. He/She should help you have a good sleep again.

"Yesterday Once More", written by Richard Carpenter and John Bettis, was a very popular song by The Carpenters from their 1973 album Now & Then. The lyrics of Yesterday Once More are:

When I was young
I'd listen to the radio
Waitin' for my favorite songs
When they played I'd sing along
It made me smile.

Those were such happy times
And not so long ago
How I wondered where they'd gone
But they're back again
Just like a long lost friend
All the songs I loved so well.

Every Sha-la-la-la
Every Wo-o-wo-o
Still shines
Every shing-a-ling-a-ling
That they're startin' to sing
So fine.

When they get to the part
Where he's breakin' her heart
It can really make me cry
Just like before
It's yesterday once more.

Lookin' back on how it was
In years gone by
And the good times that I had
Makes today seem rather sad
So much has changed.

It was songs of love that
I would sing to them
And I'd memorized each word
Those old melodies
Still sound so good to me

As they melt the years away.

Every Sha-la-la-la
Every Wo-o-wo-o
Still shines
Every shing-a-ling-a-ling
That they're startin' to sing's
So fine.

All my best memories
Come back clearly to me
Some can even make me cry.
Just like before
It's yesterday once more.

This is Allen's last semester in junior high school. He can't believe that time is going so fast. He was a child when he entered junior high, but now he feels he is a young man.

There have been many good times and bad times during his junior high school days. He was not very good in some subjects like English and math. He felt bored in those classes. After the tests, he was usually embarrassed about his poor grades. He sometimes felt he had no friends.

His parents were worried about him. They had him go to cram schools, but he was very unhappy there. He didn't want to spend his time doing things he didn't like. Finally, his parents decided to let him find his own interest.

Allen has been interested in music since he was a child. He played the guitar for his classmates at a birthday party, and everyone was very impressed. They all liked his music and asked him to play for them or teach them. Allen was proud of himself for the first time. He also felt that he had friends.

Allen is going to graduate soon. He knows himself better now and he has many friends. He's not unhappy anymore.

Do you know who Michael Phelps is? He won the most gold medals in Olympic Games in history. However, few people know Phelps had unhappy experiences in his childhood.

First, Phelps had ADHD when he was seven. He had more energy than other students so he couldn't make himself just sit and learn in the classroom. Although his teachers almost gave up on his education, his mother still believed in her son. She knew he had a gift for swimming. She found Phelps loved swimming and did well in the swimming pool.

Second, Phelps looked a little different from other children. For example, some children laughed at his big ears, and he often stumbled when walking and running because of his long arms, short legs and big feet. In fact, getting teased for those features really made Phelps very sad, but he didn't give up his dream. As time went by, those unhappy experiences also helped him make up his mind to be a top swimmer in the world.

Global warming is real and it is here to stay. If you do not take any action, it will get worse. To save the Earth, you can start to make changes in your daily life. Here are some ideas:

Is Your Fridge Running?

Do you know your home produces more global warming pollution than a car? The refrigerator is the biggest energy-eating thing in your house. To reduce your CO₂ output at home, ask your parents to buy appliances with blue- or black-and-white ENERGY STAR stickers.

Give It a Rest

Using the screen saver on your computer takes more energy than letting your computer go into sleep mode. Always check your computer to see if it goes into sleep mode by itself after a few minutes.

That screen saver with the 3-D shapes swirling around might be cool, but it's even better to cool off planet Earth.

Paper or Plastic? Neither!

Next time you go to the convenience store with your parents or friends and the clerk asks whether you prefer paper or plastic, say, “Neither!” Canvas bags are the way to go. Most brown bags you get at a store are stronger than other paper bags because they are made from trees more than 100 years old. Cutting down those old trees worsens global warming. Plus, it is even worse to take plastic bags. In fact, to make 14 plastic bags, you'd need the same amount of petroleum that it would take to drive a car one mile (1.6km). So, for carrying your stuff around, canvas bags are a fantastic solution. Make your parents keep a few in the car so you'll never have to choose between paper or plastic again.

Hello, friends! Today I'm reporting from the top of Bamboo Mountain. A little while ago, I saw a panda when I was walking through the wonderful bamboo forest to get here. Well, I'm just kidding! It was my friend in a panda costume. He looked very cute!

As we all know, pandas love to eat bamboo. But do you know...

- Bamboo looks like tree, but it's grass.
- Bamboo grows really fast! You can even hear it grow.
- Bamboo is hollow inside.

What can you do with bamboo? Lots of creative things! You can create delicious dishes with bamboo, like bamboo soup and bamboo rice. You can also use bamboo to make charcoal. When bamboo becomes charcoal, it's useful for cooking. The charcoal also takes away bad smells and makes water taste better.

Bamboo can also be used in shampoo, and it can be made into chairs, desks and even clothes!

In fact, My friend bought a bamboo T-shirt to take home, and I got a little bamboo plant. I'm going to create my own bamboo forest!

Mrs. Smith: What is Grace doing?
Vincent: Isn't she doing her homework?
Mrs. Smith: No, she's talking to someone online. Recently, she's always busy talking online every night. I smell a rat.
Vincent: Don't worry, Mom. She is just gossiping with her friends on Facebook. Girls like to do that, you know.
Mrs. Smith: Well, why doesn't she let me know what she's doing? There must be something wrong. Does she have a boyfriend? Come on, Vincent, you must know something.
Vincent: Mom, spare me. I don't know anything. She and I never talk about this.
Mrs. Smith: Really?
Vincent: Mom, why not call Ms. Cruz? Grace likes her a lot and never hides anything from her. Maybe Grace has talked to her already.
Mrs. Smith: You're right. I should go and visit her next week. She is close to Grace and knows what problems Grace has at school.
Vincent: Yes. But you should ask Grace what time Ms. Cruz doesn't have class and is free to see you!

A man in the American state of Washington seemed to take the words “kill it with fire” too seriously. It caused his house to go up in flames after he tried to kill a spider with a cigarette lighter and a can of spray paint.

One Tuesday evening, the man noticed the eight-legged creature inside his West Seattle home while he 1 the phone. He went after it using a lighter and a can of spray paint. He 2 it with fire. However, what he did made his house catch fire. Firefighters arrived at the house soon. But when they finally put out the fire, it had already caused a huge amount of damage. The fire cost the man almost US$ 60,000.

We'd like to take this opportunity to give people some good advice: NEVER EVER DO THIS STUPID

THING. Do not use fire to kill bugs and other unwanted creatures in your house. Don't ever do it. You may say, "Well, at least the spider 3! Ha-ha-ha!" But is that worth the risk of burning down your house? Most spiders are harmless, and some are even beneficial—they eat insects. So if you don't want a spider in your house, you can try to catch it and 4 it outside, where it can live safely.

Listening, speaking, reading, and writing are the four main skills for language learning, including English. Listening is the most important skill of the four. Why? Because in a conversation, you have little time to think about the speaker's meaning, and the speaker probably won't stop in the middle of the conversation and explain word by word before continuing with the next sentence. So, how can you understand more when people speak English? Here's a good tip: Don't blame yourself if you don't understand at first. Many English learners think their skill is not good enough for them to understand native English speakers. This may or may not be true, but it's not the right attitude for English learning. Sometimes, English speakers just speak too fast, and what they say might not be completely understood by other native speakers of English. And sometimes, they may not completely understand the topic, so they don't express their ideas clearly. So don't think that it's always your fault. If you don't understand what an American says, you can simply ask, "Excuse me, could you speak more slowly?", or "Sorry, I didn't catch your words." And 99% of the speakers will repeat what they said in a new way to try to help you understand. So have confidence and remember that it isn't always your fault.

Tuesdays with Morrie, written by the American writer Mitch Albom, tells a true story between a teacher and a student. Morrie Schwartz was Albom's favorite teacher when Albom was a student. But after Albom left school, he didn't keep his promise to stay in touch with his professor. It was not until twenty years later that Albom finally went to visit Morrie, when he was about to die.

For fourteen weeks, the two men met on Tuesdays to talk about the art of living. "Dying is one thing to be sad about," Morrie told Albom, "but living without happiness is another thing." He told the younger man that there are many negative thoughts about the real world. He said we should live a life based on love and caring about others. "The most important thing in life is learning how to give out love, and knowing how to let it in," Morrie said. And Morrie did just that. Although he was dying, he wanted to see more friends and show how much he cared about them.

Albom recorded his talks with Morrie and turned them into Tuesdays with Morrie, a book that has been read by many people all over the world. People agree with the book's message about how to live a happy life.

Michael was a very rich man. He got lots of money from his family, which once ran one of the world's biggest oil companies. Having so much money wasn't too bad. With it, he was able to live a comfortable life and he also married a pretty, young wife, Jenny. But, sad to say, Jenny married Michael just for his money. She went shopping around the world on Michael's plane all the time, but he didn't seem to get angry about this at all. In fact, there was one thing that Michael really cared about: writing.

Michael loved to write. When he was fifteen years old, instead of working hard in school, he spent most of his time writing. He enjoyed writing stories for children. However, his stories at that time weren't really interesting enough to other people. After Michael finished high school, he started to travel around the world. During his trip, he took notes and tried to create different stories. He told these stories to children in all the countries he visited before he went back home. He made his stories into a book, which soon became popular. But he wasn't interested in selling it. Instead, he gave his book to schools so that children could read it and become interested in other places and cultures. He later gave a speech and said: "I don't want to be remembered just because I'm rich, but because I've done something more important in my life."

You may have heard lately that more and more people are eating less and less meat or stop eating it. Some do it to try to be healthier and others do it to save the earth. Some people have picked one day not to eat meat, such as Meat-free Mondays. In the news, we can read about how bad it is to eat more meat than vegetables.

However, one study tells us another story. It says that meat consumption has been five times higher than in the early 1960s. How did this happen? This is because there are much more people to feed. Besides, people make more money and buy more meat for their meals.

Let's look at a chart showing meat consumption per person in a year in some countries. In Kenya, people today eat as much meat as those in 1960s. In China, meat consumption in the 1960s was less than 5kg per person each year. But by the late 1980s, it went up to 20kg.

Although people in the USA still eat the most meat in the world, a study shows they eat less red meat, such as beef and pork, but more chicken and duck. This can be good news for their health and the earth, too.

There are many famous landmarks around the world. These landmarks can be buildings, statues and bridges. Many of them have an interesting history.

In Paris, the Eiffel Tower attracts the most visitors every year. This 324-meter iron tower was built for the World's Fair in 1889. However, the Eiffel Tower did not look beautiful in the eyes of Parisians at that time.

During World War I, it was used as a radiotelegraph tower to gather information about the enemy. And in World War II, the Eiffel Tower luckily avoided being destroyed by Hitler and his soldiers. Now, it is the icon of France.

Another famous landmark is New York's Statue of Liberty—a goddess holding a torch high above her head and a tablet in the other hand. It was made in France and then given to the United States on October 28, 1886, as a present to remember Americans' fight for freedom.

Besides towers and statues, bridges can also be popular landmarks. One of the most popular landmarks in the world is Tower Bridge in London. This 124-year-old bridge crosses the River Thames close to the Tower of London and has become an iconic symbol of London. Before it was built, a design contest was held and people finally decided on a drawbridge, which can open up to allow tall ships to pass through. Since then, "Ships go first, and cars wait" has been the golden rule for Tower Bridge. Even the former U.S. president Bill Clinton was stopped by the bridge when he visited London.

Behind every famous landmark in the world is an interesting history worth discovering. The next time you visit one of them, try to look up its history first. It will surely double the fun during your trip.

Try to picture this in your mind! You are seated comfortably inside a boat, the sun is shining, and the ocean is beautiful. You look out and you find how much closer you are to the whale sharks.... That's right! You are now in Oslob, Cebu, Philippines, which is famous for whale shark tours. People can not only watch but also swim with them. This may sound like a lot of fun, but actually, this activity endangers the whale sharks.”

Many ocean lovers have pointed out that feeding whale sharks can endanger their lives. Every day, the fishermen draw the sharks to Oslob by feeding them krill which are small plankton that can grow up to six cm long. Krill are good swimmers; they look like little fish without fins. After being fed like this for a long time, the sharks may lose the ability to hunt for food by themselves. What’s more, just like people, what if we ate the same food every day? We would lose some important nutrients that we need for our bodies, and so will those sharks. Besides, as we all know, ocean creatures often move to other places when they breed. Therefore, encouraging them to always stay in the same spot may change their habits and lead to less breeding and a smaller number of sharks. Last but not the least, as more and more people visit Oslob for whale watching, people often break the “No Touching Rules” and even take pictures of themselves riding on the backs of the whale sharks. At the same time, since they have gotten used to being fed, more and more whale sharks mistake the non-tour boats for tour boats, and they can bump the body of the boats and get hurt....Read More

(Sandy is texting her mom.)

Dear Mom,

How are you doing? Summer vacation is around the corner. I'm very excited that I'm going to run away from the terrible air and weather in Taipei.

I'm sorry I seldom call you. I'm just afraid I will get homesick when I chat with you on the phone. We train very hard, practice for over 5 hours every day, and get hurt from time to time. But the coach is always nice to us. We all are like a family. She takes really good care of us, so don't worry about me.

Next week, I will take a train home after school as long as I can snap up a ticket. As you know, it's never easy to get a ticket to Hualien. If I can't, then I will take a tour bus. I'll let you know as soon as I get the exact time. Would you please pick me up when I get back? I don't want to walk home, even though it takes me only 10 minutes. I can't wait to see you all.

By the way, is Nick coming home from Kaohsiung, too? I haven't seen him for over two months. He may have become taller than me by now! I miss you all soooooo much.

Love,

Sandy

5 Hot Places at the Yuling Floral Expo

Enjoy amazing summer time in Yuling!!

Minnan Old House & Museum

This is a 300-year-old Fukienese building. There is an open square in the middle of the big house. Around the square are 24 rooms and two ponds. There is also a beautiful Chinese garden in back of the house. People can see beautiful flowers, waterfalls, bridges, and Chinese plants in it.

EcoARK

This green building is made of water bottles. Instead of electricity, the building uses recycled water to cool the building, so people don't feel hot on the first floor, even in summer. There are also some interesting lessons about recycling. Take the MRT to Gym Station. Then go north for two blocks to Zhongshan Rd. and turn right. You'll first see Minnan Old House and Museum. Then EcoARK is just next to it.

Yuling Story House

This English Tudor style house is now a small museum to show the history of Yuling and also has art activities for people to enjoy. After visiting the museum, visitors can have a nice afternoon tea at the Story Tea House and enjoy the beautiful English garden. The museum is open from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., Tuesday to Sunday.

Fine Arts Park

The Floral Tunnel and Yuling Fine Arts Museum are located in Fine Arts Park. Walking along Floral Tunnel, people can see different gardens from the United States, Thailand, Belau, Japan, and other countries. In the art museum, people can find a special exhibition of Russian painting. Parents can also take their children to the Children's Art Center to join some activities like painting and storytelling.

Yuling Rose Garden

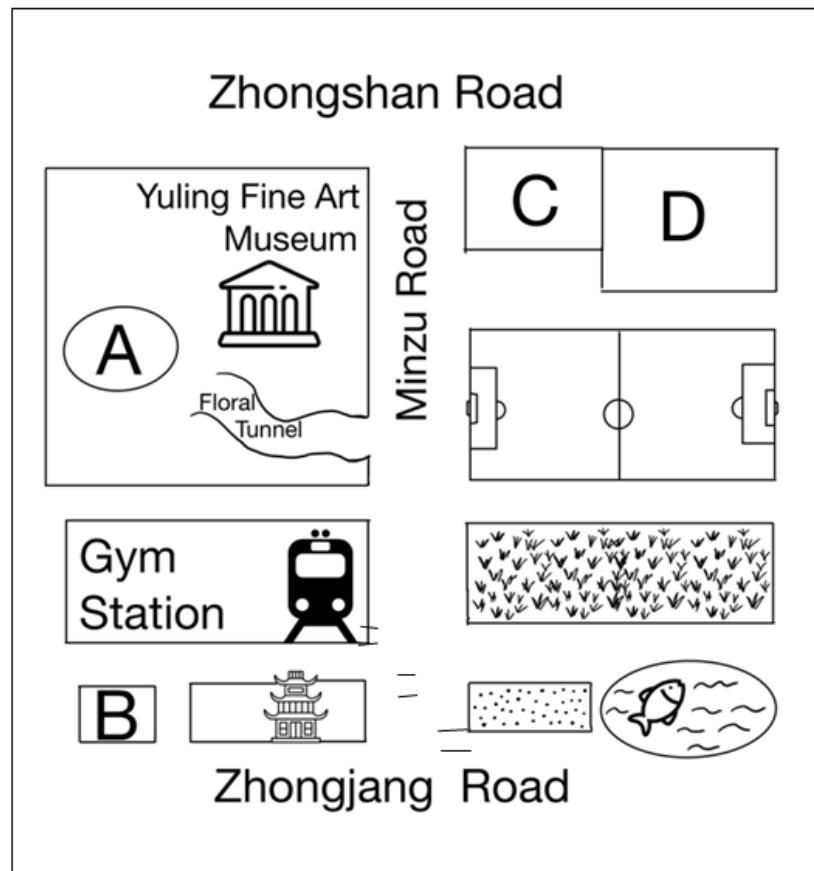

After seven years of development, this garden is now home to over 700 kinds of roses. Why seven years? It is hard to grow so many roses in Yuling because of its hot weather and typhoons. Now people can enjoy the sweet smell and the beautiful flowers. Just get off at Gym Station and walk through the Fine Arts Park to get there.

() 239 · My husband and I plan to take our daughters to visit the Floral Expo this Saturday afternoon. The sisters enjoy listening to stories, their dad enjoys gardening, and I want to see some wonderful paintings. Where should we visit for our lovely Saturday afternoon?
